Adding new file

Brice Thomas

To add a new file, it's very simple. For example, let's take this text. And then we add a new file here. We will called it Differences.md. Then we will put the text on it. And we will valid it by creating a new version of the project. Then we can see that the new file is here. And now we will take its URL and we will add it as a link to the README. We are using the link' syntax of Markdown, as you have learned before. And as you can see it's very simple. Then we valid the changes. And we are all done.
