

Project creation transcript

Philippe Padioleau

Once you created your GitHub account and you are log on the website, the first thing to do is to create a new project.

On Github a project is called a repository so for each course you have to create a repository.

Enter your project and an optional description. Note you can check "Initialize with README" to get a blank document in your project.

Finally you get a project and you are ready to take notes.